ALGER'S RESIGNATION.

Secretary Alger has tendered his resignation to President McKinley, who has accepted it, and the former will leave the cabinet. He will leave it not only with the President's consent, but with that of ninety nine per cent of the people of the United States. His retention has been a source of scandal to the administration and has had the effect, more perhaps than any other cause, to make the Philippines the most unpopular war in which our country has ever engaged. His work has been a series of outrages and blunders from first to last. The interests of the country have been sacrificed to political purposes and army appointments have notoriously been made with utter disregard to the fitness of appointees for that branch of the public service. Our control of the Philippines has not advanced a step since Dewey's capture of Manila, and, if anything, the American condition is worse than on the day when that gallant commander took possession of the principal city of the islands. It will require honest and diligent efforts upon the part of a competent successor to undo the work of the retired secretary, and months will elapse before the situation can be restored to its normal condition.

It goes without saying that Alger's resignation was forced upon him by the President, who could not avoid discernment of the fact that the secretary's unpopularity was a serious menace to his administration and perhaps an insurmountable obstruction to renomination by his party. But Alger's record is a part of the history of the administration, and as such will have to be defended by the supporters of the man who, at this late date, when so much mischief has been accomplished, consented to his removal. Then the cause of the secretary's forced retirement will be a matter susceptible of many unfavorable surmises and much adverse criticism. So long as he blundered and floundered in his management of the War Department, the President forgave him. The army and country stormed against him in vain. It was only when Alger entered into political partnership in Michigan with an outspoken enemy of the President, with the announced intention of supplanting in the United States Senate a recognized friend of the administration, that the relations between the President and secretary changed. What Mr. McKinley overlooked in the secretary he would not condone in the anti-administration candidate for a senatorship. While the people of the country will draw a long breath of relief upon the removal of the obnoxious cabinet officer, they will be slow to forget his record or his long retention, for which they will hold responsible the administration of President McKinley.

GET THEIR OPINION.

Lawton and Wheaton and Hale and McArthur and Funston, who have led their gallant volunteers from one side of the Island of Luzon to the other, meeting and licking the Filipinos and capturing their strongholds, know how much and how little has been accomplished and what remains to be done. They know why nearly all of the territory they have won has been abandoned and why their commands are cooped up in Manila under the protection of the navy. They know whether the rebellion is on its last legs. They have opinions as to what is needed to hold the islands and establish American supremacy over them. Why not ask them? Remove the seal which has been placed upon their lips by their superior officer (in rank) and let them tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help them Bob. They may corroborate General Otis. If they do, so much the better for him and everybody else. If they do not, their version will do him no great injury nor add particularly to his discredit as a chronicler or a prophet. The American people would like to hear from them, anyhow.

In the platform of the Republican party of Kentucky appears the following:

"We congratulate the Republican party that existing federal legislation for the suppression of harmful trusts, pools and combinations is the work of a Republican Congress, prepared during the administration of a Republican President."

Such unprecedented gall is enough to make a horse laugh and set a band of colts to giggling. "During the administration of a Republican President" forsooth! Why, during the two years and few months of McKinley's administration, more trusts have been organized than during any other twenty years of our nation's history. Yes, the Dingley law was the "work of a Republican Congress," and everybody knows what a tendency that piece of legislation has had towards the suppression of "harmful trusts, pools and combinations." As an illustration of adamantine cheek, the devil denouncing sin isn't a marker to a Republican convention's denunciations of trusts.

CONVERTED.

The Portland Oregonian, the most influential Republican paper on the Pacific Coast, has been converted to the low tariff doctrine, declaring that "Industries now organized into trusts have demonstrated that they are no longer entitled to tariff protection. Infant industries they were once; now they are giants. Instead of protecting them, the country needs protection from them. Tariffs on trust products should be reduced to their point of greatest revenue production. And the time seems almost here when this principle of adjustment should be applied to the whole gamut of tariff schedules."

The country is gradually coming to its senses and accepting the doctrine of tariff for revenue only. The Oregonian voices the sentiments to-day of the most intelligent Republicans of the country.

It is stated that the probable Republican National ticket in 1900 will be McKinley and Roosevelt, the averment being made that Roosevelt wants the Vice-Presidency as a stepping stone to the Presidency.

If Todd is so anxious to be President he should try some other route to the White House other than that of the Vice-Presidency, which generally leads to the political graveyard. Since the time of Van Duren no Vice-President has ever been elected President, and those who have tumbled into the position "cold turkey" by the deaths of Chief Executives have been retired at the end of their terms, and generally to the absolute obscurity of private life.

The "Coming Age" for July. The July Coming Age opens the second volume of this vigorous and able Boston review. The frontispiece is an admirable full-page portrait of the Rev. Heber Newton, who contributes a conversation of exceptional interest on "The Progress of the Past Fifty Years." The second conversation is by Viola Allen on "Glory Quayle and 'The Christian.'" It is preceded by a critical review of Hall Caine's play, "The Christian," written by B. O. Flower. Professor Osmer Abbot, Ph. D., of Lahaina Seminary, Hawaii, writes most delightfully on "The Mental Characteristics and Peculiarities of the Native Hawaiians." Charles Maloy, President of the Emerson Society of Boston, continues his masterly interpretations of the poems of Ralph Waldo Emerson. Dr. John Thomas Codman, the scholarly author, contributes a delightful reminiscent paper on "The Brook Farm Association," but perhaps no contribution in this issue will be more enjoyed by the general reader than E. P. Powell's essay on "Harriet Martineau in America." Mr. Powell is always interesting, instructive and suggestive, and this paper is unquestionably one of the best things from his pen. The Coming Age has taken a front rank among the able reviews of present-day thought. It is optimistic and constructive in character, and aims to educate and stimulate the moral as well as intellectual side of life. The department devoted to Health Through Rational Living is a feature of real value and very essential to those who appreciate the fact that the body, brain and soul each require consideration.

Snakes' Sense of Smell.

Snakes have the sense of smell. It is difficult to obtain food for the rattlesnakes and copperheads out at the zoological park. The keeper has been trying them on the house rats and mice he has caught about the building. He would leave them in the snake cage overnight and through the day. They would run over the snakes with impunity. The snakes would pay no attention to them, but when he happened to secure some field mice and put them in the cage the snakes ate them at once. He put in several rats and mice of the ordinary house variety that were living out of doors under the sidewalk, and those were seized by the snakes almost as readily as the wild species.

The keeper then conceived the idea of making an earth box to keep the rats in for awhile before feeding, and he found that if they were put in there for 12 hours or so before they were given to the snakes they would be eaten. The only apparent explanation is that the smell of the earth is agreeable to the snakes, and that the smell which the animals acquire about buildings is objectionable.—Chicago Record.

The Albany Capitol Guide.

One of the first things done by a stranger visiting Albany, says the Philadelphia Call, is to pay 25 cents and put himself at the mercy of a capitol guide. The guide makes a profound and obsequious bow, like a prestidigitator about to charm an audience, and proceeds to lift the veil which hides the mysteries of the great building.

On a recent occasion the guide led the stranger regretfully past "McGinty's" empty frame and proceeded to identify the heads of notables that decorate the stairway. He did fairly well until the stranger pointed out Shakespeare and Homer and asked who they were.

"Them," replied the guide, undaunted, "are the heads of two politicians whose names I disremember."

Then the Girls Giggle.

It occurred at a wedding in a Kansas City church. The minister was young and nervous and instead of saying, "Who gives this woman?" etc., he asked gravely, "Who gives this man to this woman?"

If the bride had not been four inches taller and many pounds heavier than the groom, the slip would have attracted less attention. As it was, the other girls in the church were not to be blamed for tittering.

Her Aristocracy.

"Every woman is an aristocrat at heart," said the youngest boarder.

"Yes," said the cheerful idiot; "she hates to think of herself as classed with the plain people."—Indianapolis Journal.

It Was Tantamount.

"Has she told you that she loved you?"

"Not in so many words. She merely asked me what life insurance I carried."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A four months' tour from England to India can be made, including all cost with economy, or $1,500 and luxuriously for $2,500.

Among the Phoenicians, in ancient days, the wearing of earrings was a badge of servitude.

They Settled.

Long before the war General Butler, who was then a struggling young lawyer, lived up in a Massachusetts manufacturing town. He had displayed ability at college, but had to wait the usual number of years for his first case. At last a young girl who had worked in a cotton mill came to him for redress against her employers. She had been discharged without wages, and on a quest for three weeks' wages was unmercifully thrust from the door. The case looked blue, for the firm was a very rich one, but she needed money badly. She offered Ben one-half to collect it.

The next morning, while on her way to look for employment, she came upon a great gathering at a crossing. She inquired what was the matter and learned that the factory she had left had shut down for the first time in 80 years. Wondering what could have brought about such a state, she passed on and presently met Butler. He was leaning against a lampost whittling a stick.

"Tsall right" he called, waving his knife with a jaunty air. "Tsall right. I've got 'em!"

"Got who?" ventured the young lady.

"Why, those old skins up at the factory. I went to 'em right after I saw you yesterday and demanded the bill. They told me to hustle. I then got out an attachment on their water wheel and shut up the shop. You own $15 worth of the entire machinery. Oh, they'll settle by noon!" And they did.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Mystery of Sausage.

The composition of the sausage is not only complex, but it is often obscure. In this country the preparation of this (as it should be) useful article of food is confined to the employment of minced beef and pork. The only exception probably is the so called "black pudding," which is made with pig's blood and perhaps some heart and kidney.

A broad, however, the sausage is compounded of a much wider range of substances. These include brains, liver and horseflesh. The last substance is generally considered repugnant, while, of course, it is fraudulent to sell sausages as beef or pork containing horseflesh.

Occasionally, however, sausages do not contain meat at all, but only bread tinged with red oxide of iron and mixed with a varying proportion of fat. The remarkable feature of horseflesh is the high proportion of glycogen which it contains, and this fact enables the presence of horseflesh to be detected with some amount of certainty. The test which depends on a color reaction with iodine has recently been more carefully studied and with more satisfactory results, so that the presence of 5 per cent of horseflesh in sausages can be detected.—Lancet.

A Street Hustler.

"What's your business?" asked the police magistrate of a man who was before him for abusing his wife because supper was not ready.

"I'm a street hustler," was the reply. Explanations showed, says the New York Herald, that the man represented a large number of fellows in New York who have no regular occupation, but nevertheless manage to make a good living, particularly at this time of the year. They loiter around the streets until they see a vanload of furniture going somewhere. Then they follow the wagon, oftentimes for miles. The wagon drivers do not take kindly to these men and will not let them ride.

Men who are "handy with their hands," as it was explained to the magistrate, have no difficulty in getting a job laying carpets, cleaning windows and furnaces or hanging out clotheslines. It is a poor wagon chase that does not net from $3 to $4 a load. Sometimes, when two or more men are following the same load, competition is keen. The wagon driver whips his horses, and the prize falls to the man who has the fleetest foot and the greatest wind power.

"I think I would go crazy with pain were it not for Chamberlain's Pain Balm," writes W. H. Stapleton, Herminie, Pa. "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for several years and have tried remedies without number, but Pain Balm is the best medicine I have got hold of." One application relieves the pain. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

There is no better medicine for the babies than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Its pleasant taste and prompt and effective cures make it a favorite with mothers and small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds, preventing pneumonia or other serious consequences. It also cures croup and has been used in tens of thousands of cases without a single failure so far as we have been able to learn. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croaky cough appears, will prevent the attack. In cases of whooping cough it liquefies the tough mucus, making it easier to expectorate, and lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, thus depriving that disease of all its dangerous consequences.

HEARD AT THE COURTHOUSE.

Being the narration of the wonderful antics of a festive McCloud.

"Speaking of fishing," remarked Auditor Shearer in a reminiscent manner to the group of county officials assembled in the Sheriff's office to enjoy a quiet smoke, "I will tell you a little story, a true one, mind you, which really happened once on a time when I was angling in San Francisco bay."

Here the venerable Auditor paused and ran his fingers over his face as if to form a definite plan of narration. Then, taking up his theme, he told this story:

"I had been working hard at my desk for some weeks and was in need of a little recreation, so one day I deserted my Market street office, secured a few hundred feet of strong fish line and a large hook, bought a few pounds of raw meat to use for bait, and started down to the Ferry to fish. I boarded one of the large ferry steamers plying between the city and Oakland, bated hook and threw it overboard, made the line fast and then sat down to enjoy the cool sea breeze. Suddenly the speed of the boat slackened perceptibly and at last we came to a standstill. The big paddle wheels churned the water into foam in a futile endeavor to move on. I saw my line was taut, so began to draw it in and in a few minutes an immense fish, fully twenty feet long was lying on the deck at my feet. He was so large and active that he had stopped the boat."

The listeners shifted uneasily in their chairs, but no great discomfort was manifested until some one asked "What kind of a fish was it, Ben?"

"A McCloud trout," promptly replied the Auditor.

The office clock gave an ominous gurgle and stopped; a sleepy cat crawled out from under the speaker's chair and fearfully crept from the room. The audience slowly and sadly dispersed, until, like the Roman Cataline, Auditor Shearer was left alone. In the chilly solitude which prevailed, a prisoner in the adjoining jail was heard to groan and murmur incoherently, "Lord, have mercy upon the sinner, for he knows not what he says."

Sutro Tunnel Extension.

The introduction of cheap power on the Comstock that will admit of handling the low grade ore resources of the lode profitably and the increase in revenue that the Comstock Tunnel Company will receive from royalty will in all probability be followed by the renewal of the project of extending the Sutro tunnel under Mount Davidson westward.

In 1887 Colonel C. C. Thomas, who was then superintendent of the Sutro tunnel, recommended the extension of the tunnel 6,000 feet west of its present terminus which would permit of the exploration of the broad mineral belt west of the syenite wall on the sunset slope of Mount Davidson, the existence of which is indicated by outcroppings.

He also stated that by extending the tunnel 2,000 feet further west it would pass through the McKibben and Burnside ledges on the eastern slope of the mountain and admit of their exploration at a depth of more than 2,000 feet below the outcroppings.

He estimated that the proposed extension could be made at a cost of $200,000 and in addition to the probability of finding large ore bodies, the opening up of the ground in that direction would result in increasing the flow of the water through the tunnel sufficient to operate stamp mills east of the tunnel's mouth, as the country west of the present terminus is known to be intersected with subterranean streams or reservoirs, one of which was tapped in driving the Tangerman drift westward on the 1000 level from the Consolidated Virginia shaft, where the flow measured eight inches. This project will be discussed at the meeting of the Comstock Tunnel Company directory to be held in New York before the return of President Leonard. A year or more ago Mr. Leonard had several locations surveyed west of the summit of Davidson, evidently with the prospect that the extension of the tunnel under the mountain is included in the future plans of his company.—Chronicle.

The Hay Crop.

Mr. James Sullivan finished harvesting his first hay crop last Monday. It yielded nearly four hundred tons. Mr. Sullivan informed a JOURNAL reporter that the yield was from twenty-five to forty per cent less than usual on account of the cold weather in the spring.

He is confident, however, that the second crop will exceed proportionately that of former seasons so as to bring the year's total up to the average mark, which at his ranch is about 700 tons. In ordinary seasons the first crop is about thirty per cent larger than the second but the difference will be less this year. His hay is a mixture of alfalfa and timothy.
